The Redskins, with the help of Drew Brees, finally solved the zone coverage they've been struggling with all season long, running through the Patriots with back-breaking plays. The team's breakout performance was executed in the red zone by the defense, as they forced three field goals instead of touchdowns, while recording three sacks and one interception in just four possessions. In the second quarter alone, their defense continued the hot play that marked the entire game, forcing three turnovers, amassing 12 points on defense, and surviving a key fourth quarter rally by Tom Brady. They did it with their trademark speed and power, by pushing Brady around and creating havoc on the field. All in all, the Redskins finally broke their losing streak by defeating the hated New England Patriots in what was easily the most convincing game of the season. Through the sheer will of their defense, the team never gave up, and the offense was unstoppable, with Kirk Cousins surpassing 1,000 yards and breaking the second-longest touchdown pass streak of all-time. In all, it was a very impressive performance for the Redskins, who have now beaten the Patriots for the past two seasons. It gives the Redskins the best record in the NFC East, and also puts them at 5-1, which is tied for the second-best record in the NFL. So, for all of these reasons, and to kick off the Redskins Week, here's all of the players who impressed and their top performance: Top Performers CB Josh Norman: According to Pro Football Focus, Norman was the best cornerback on the field for the Redskins today. After allowing four catches for 28 yards in Week 1, Norman only allowed one more target for nine yards in Week 2. However, he also added a touchdown by intercepting a pass from Tom Brady. LB Preston Smith:

After a slow start to the season, Smith has finished with two sacks in the two games since getting suspended and entering the rehab process for his injury. He continued
