U.S. at 53, 124 S.Ct. 1354. In the light most favorable to the government, the jury could have concluded that Johnson participated in obtaining the stolen trucks and sold them to the undercover officers at the MPD substation. See United States v. Campos, 588 F.3d 674, 676 (8th Cir.2009) (testimony of an illegal narcotics trafficker, who received the defendant's request to supply him with three pounds of methamphetamine, was sufficient to support conviction). And Johnson does not suggest that the testimony regarding his role in the offenses was incredible as a matter of law. The remaining task for evaluating the sufficiency of the evidence is to determine whether a rational trier of fact could have found the essential elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt. See Diersen, 290 F.3d at 970. After reviewing the record in the light most favorable to the government, we conclude that the jury could have reasonably found the elements of the offenses beyond a reasonable doubt. The evidence regarding the stolen vehicles and their interstates transport to the MPD substation was sufficient for the jury to conclude that Johnson participated in a conspiracy and possessed the stolen vehicles with the intent to deprive the owner of the use and benefit of them. Although the only evidence directly tying Johnson to the crime was Burrow's testimony, as the jury is free to credit that testimony and "we cannot weigh that testimony and other evidence," evidence of Johnson's guilt was not so slight, and the evidence supporting the verdict was not so weak, as to be clearly not sufficient. See Young, 618 F.3d at 968. III. Finally, Johnson contends that the evidence did not establish a sufficient crime-of-violence nexus to support the district court's imposition of an armed career criminal enhancement pursuant to the ACCA. This court reviews de novo the district court's decision that a defendant is subject to an ACCA enhancement. United States v. Johnson, 408 F.3d 535, 538 (8th Cir. 2005). "In order for a defendant to be subject to an enhanced sentence under 18 U.S.C. § 924(e), the crime of conviction must be a `violent felony.'" United States v. Nordstrom, 488 F.3d 739, 743 (8th Cir.2007) (citing Begay v. United States, 553 U.S. 137, 128 S.

Q: JSON with AngularJS not working I'm trying to pass a JSON string to my AngularJS project, but it isn't working. I was following these instructions: Here is my index.html file: {{balance}} {{loggedIn}} {{signedInBalance}} var paymentApp = angular.module('paymentApp', []) paymentApp.controller('indexController', function ($scope, $http) { $http.get('data/balance.json') .success(function (data) { $scope.balance = data }) .error(function (data) { alert("Something is wrong!") }); }); and here is my JSON file: {"loginInfo":{"name":"Test","salt":"Test","id":"1234"}} any ideas why it isn't working? Thank you in advance! A: There is a syntax error: .success(function (data) { should be .success(function (data) { If you use $scope.$apply instead of $scope.apply, the code will work! Try this: Smart cities would be pervasive but not necessarily ubiquitous: a qualitative case study of the coexistence of IoT and 5G. The spatial distribution of smart city technologies is currently a hot topic of research in urban informatics. Empirical works often assume that the city is composed of "smart" areas that are the focus of research, and other areas where the technologies are not used or are not accessible for lack of infrastructure. This paper discusses the relationship between digital technologies (IoT) and wireless communication technologies (5G) in a geographically-focused case study in the city
